Our Process

SuperStaff designs custom data science outsourcing processes to help enterprises meet the complexities of the modern business landscape.

1. Identify needs

Understanding that each business is unique, we initiate the project by identifying the needs of your company. Afterward, we draft a baseline model that indicates the software and other data science solutions you require.

2. Establish goals

We then set a S.M.A.R.T. plan of action to guide all parties toward achieving the visions and objectives defined.

3. Create scope of work

Once we have a clear picture of your goals, we create a scope of work that includes specific data analytics processes and technology, key performance indicators, deliverables, timelines, and other expectations for the project's outcome.

4. Select from talent pool

The next step is to build a team of data science professionals equipped with the competencies required to meet your objectives. We involve you in this stage and let you pick from a pool of candidates who underwent a stringent selection process.

5. Train and integrate

Afterward, we empower your team to perform the job to your satisfaction and introduce them to your company's culture. Our training and onboarding experts are equipped to face the challenges of conducting training in the new normal.

6. Manage office operations

As part of our commitment to ensuring a high level of service, we monitor the performance of your data analytics and development teams. We also facilitate continuous improvement in all aspects of the operation.

The SuperStaff Approach

SuperStaff employs an agile business approach that allows our clients greater flexibility and control.

Scalable Processes

To help businesses keep pace with the radically changing demands of their industries, we employ scalable solutions. Pay only for the services and resources you use and adjust roles to accommodate your most pressing business needs.

Comparative Cost Advantage

SuperStaff provides you with the most suitable and cost-beneficial options to manage and analyze data. We help increase your ROI by minimizing financial expenditures for recruitment, training, infrastructure maintenance, and other costs related to running an in-house data management operation.

Consistent

While SuperStaff continues to embrace modern and agile business practices, we ensure that our level of service remains consistent. We act as an extension of your company and align our service standards to your expectations.

Transparent

SuperStaff upholds ethical principles and adheres to all confidentiality and privacy policies involving data handling. We also maintain straightforward and honest communication with stakeholders and all involved parties.
